HALLOWEEN FUN FACTS Trick-or-treating likely evolved from the medieval custom of "souling" in England. On All Souls' Day celebrations, poor people would knock on doors asking for food in exchange for saying prayers for the home's dead relatives. Cats have been part of the history of Halloween for centuries. During the ancient Celtic festival of Samhain, priests used cats as part of a ritual to try to predict the future. The "bon" in bonfire is a reference to bones. During Samhain, priests lit large fires to represent the sun returning after the hard winter. They would throw the bones of cattle into the flames, creating a "bone fire."
